Phil

I had heard a rumour that the amendments to PSR have been delayed and would not be included in the October regulatory amendments. I therefore asked HSE if the rumour was correct. The response is below. Can you circulate to members.

Regards

Peter

Subject: RE: Impact assessment for including gasoline as a dangerous fluid

Hi Peter,

the rumour mill is correct on this occasion. The review HSE and other government departments had to carry out to ensure proposed regulatory measures were in line with new government policies has meant that we could not meet our original timetable and implementation will now be April 2011.

We will be issuing the summary of responses to the consultation within the next week or so which explains this in further detail. However, I am just about to send you an email about the definition of gasoline to give you a little bit more time to respond than is allowed in the summary.

Kind regards
Lyndsey
